

SPEAKERS

DR RUTH LUKABYO

Ruth was born and lives in Sydney. She is the Dean of Women at Youthworks College, an evangelical Anglican college, for over 15 years teaching Church History and being involved in the theological education of children's and youth ministers. She is passionate about God's work and intergenerational ministry. Ruth has recently published a book "From a ministry for youth to a ministry of youth: Aspects of Protestant Ministry in Sydney 1920-1959". Ruth is married to Alan, an Anglican Minister and has three young adult children. She loves reading history, novels, and bushwalking in the Blue Mountains.

REV'D JUDY DOUGLAS

Judy is the Rector at St James Anglican Church, Holt. She has been working with youth and young adults for more than 30 years and believes in having positive conversations with young people about their faith, relationships, and how sex is a good gift from God and choosing God's way in relationships creates the meaning of life. Judy is passionate about working with youth, Christian leaders and parents, developing resources and establishing intergenerational environments within the Church. Judy is married and has two young adult children.

DR MONICA SHORT

Monica is a social science researcher and social work lecturer at Charles Sturt University. She enjoys speaking and co-presenting about Christian virtues such as forgiveness, ecclesiology and practical theology, social justice and social work, and research. Monica will be leading a workshop on forgiveness and helping us to consider how it nurtures relationships between generations. Monica became a Christian in high school, enjoys being a member of the Anglican Church of Australia, and is excited to be the Patron of Mothers Union in the Anglican Diocese of Canberra & Goulburn. She is married to Bishop Mark Short and they have two sons, Andrew and Matthew.
